Improving the health and well-being of African Americans in St. Louis

Dear Friends,

In November of 2014, I began negotiations about receiving a grant from Trinity Church, Wall Street, in New York City. The grant was to create the basis for Emmanuel to help create a regional religious partnership with Dr. Jason Q. Purnell, assistant professor at the Brown School at Washington University. Our intent for this project is to expand the reach of the For the Sake of All project (FSOA) by creating a compelling theological rationale for the work of racial reconciliation in Ferguson and St. Louis County. We will also attempt to mobilize the support of religious communities to improve the health and well being of our region. We will be initially enlisting community leaders and then will move to engage a broad spectrum of religious and community groups.

I encourage you to learn more about the For Sake of All project, by visiting their website (<http://forthesakeofall.org/>) or read the editorial about it in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch: http://www.stltoday.com/news/opinion/it-s-time-to-stop-studying/article\_02b260de-4299-5569-9f27-6deab2ceeb0d.html .

As of the end of March, I have been informed that we have received a grant of $50,000 for the first year of this project, with the possibility of a second grant and a second year.

These moneys will not impact our parish’s budget , and will be overseen by a separate financial oversight group, including me, Dick Clark, Ida Early and Jerry Cooper. The program, itself, will also not directly impact Emmanuel and its ministry. Leadership and participation will instead include people from throughout the Metropolitan St. Louis region. I do hope, though, that people from Emmanuel will be interested in participating in the project, and I will look for ways to make that happen.

Our first event will be held on April 20th, at the Sheldon, when we will convene an interfaith and racially diverse group of faith leaders. They will be tasked with passionately articulating the theological and moral case for challenging the income and wellness disparity that exists across racial lines in our region. This gathering will seek to synthesize a “moral and theological case” for caring for “the least of these.”

The moral case articulated by these faith leaders will then re-shape the presentation of FSOA and inform the training that facilitators will receive when preparing to share FSOA with faith communities. The first training event will occur on June 15th at Emmanuel from 5:30 to 8 pm. These facilitators will then give presentations throughout the St. Louis County area in ways that bring congregations together to work on common goals and action steps. This will be done through ecumenical, interfaith and community partnerships that already exist in the area, and will be consciously facilitated and maintained by our project leadership.

Jason and I are very excited about this work and ministry and are thankful for this partnership with Washington University and Trinity Episcopal Church, Wall Street.

Faithfully Yours,

Daniel

United Thank Offering-In Gathering May 3

Are you filling your box with your blessings?

The coins from your blessings are doing many things including:

Province VI: Diocese of Minnesota : This grant will rehabilitate a bus that will be used as a roving bicycle shop, and purchase the needed tools for the shop. The bicycle programs on the reservation will allow youth between the ages of 12 and 18 to have an opportunity to earn bikes after participating in 15 hours of programming, and youth with broken bikes will be able to help in fixing their bikes for free. Bike-building allows youth to gain self-esteem, job skills, and will help to form a positive community as an alternative to gangs and violence. Having the bus as a roving shop will allow the whole reservation of 1,093 square miles to be served.

However, we've been asked to change the day of the week to accommodate the needs of their residents.

If your child or family is interested in joining us for the Mission Trip, please email Tricia Copeland at copelandtl@hotmail.com or call 314-283-5012.

Thank you!

To the clergy and congregants of Emmanuel: Many heartfelt thanks for your kindness and support on behalf of my mother, Eleanor Fletcher. She was deeply committed to Emmanuel and had many good friends there. All of you have helped us through a difficult time. The memorial service was so nice and I know Mother would have loved every minute. The hats alone were quite a tribute!

On behalf of her family, I thank you all for your affection for her and for your generosity of spirit to us. God bless you all!

Sincerely, Susan A. Fitzpatrick

Christian Life. Each

This is a great way to enter more fully into our life together, or to prepare for baptism or confirmation. In the course of 5 weeks, you will get to know the clergy, parish leaders, other newcomers, and some of the opportunities to grow and serve in our community of faith. All are welcome, and newcomers are especially encouraged to attend.

Thank you

When word got to Emmanuel of Judd's health problems and hospital stays, it seemed some beautiful gates were opened and love just gushed forth. The feeling was miraculous and sustaining through a difficult time. It would be impossible to mention names because there were so many. There were cards almost too numerous to count. Some of them handcrafted by Junior High kids; some from kids in college who had either been in our Youth Group at times or maybe even in Cherub Choir when Judd was active there. All contained notes of love and support. There were phone calls pleading with me to call on them for assistance. There was food for the small army of people in our home. I was given a prayer shawl for warmth and emotional healing.

The support of the clergy and staff was outstanding, both during his illness and in planning his funeral which was a beautiful story of a beautiful person. I was told the reception would be “worthy of Judd Holt,” And it was.

Judd has left us but the love is still there.

Thank you Emmanuel from me and all his family.

Marie Holt

Dear Friends,

As we continue into the Season of Easter and approach Earth Day, I wanted to share the following article with you.

Peace,

Till and Keep, By Dennis Ormseth

"The Lord God took the man and put him in the garden of Eden to till it and keep it" (Genesis 2:15): stewardship of the earth is the original vocation of humankind, and it is still foundational for earth's well-being. "Till and keep" compels my personal attention because my father was an implement dealer in northern Montana. My family's prosperity depended on the sale of machinery used to till hundreds of thousands of acres, mostly wheat shipped by rail to mills and ports in Minnesota. Those machines are emblematic of how we transformed the landscape of Montana, and the Dakotas and Minnesota as well -- indeed, of the whole Mississippi watershed. A drive through this vast, richly productive countryside shows how fully we have taken this mandate "to till": some estimate that over half of the land is planted in row crops.

"Keeping" the earth, preserving its fertility for future generations, is another matter entirely. True, our land grant universities make a great study of soil science; we have sheltered exposed earth from winds; but mainly we keep up the soil's productivity -- which is not to say fertility-- with inorganic fertilizers. Too often we plow to the edge of our rivers and lakes, destroying the borders of wild grasses, trees or shrubs that not only provide critical refuge for birds, bees, turtles, frogs and other wildlife, but are also nature's way of filtering pollutants. So fertilizers seeps into the waters that course through the land. Toxic for aquatic life, they promote excessive growth of algae and decrease the levels of oxygen, leading to the death of fish and other aquatic fauna and flora. Thus do land, water, and creatures suffer from our presence.

Key to understanding this failure to "keep" the earth is our use of fossil fuels. To be sure, "till, baby, till," was our cry well before "drill, baby, drill," but we could not do the former as we have without the latter. Fossil fuels power those machines; petroleum is a major source of inorganic fertilizers. They also power transport of resources to manufacturers and products to market. They generate electricity for our utility networks and ever greater levels of consumption. They tie our world together in ever more complex relationships of supply and demand. Till and keep the earth? The great difficulty is that the means we have devised for tilling the earth makes it nearly inconceivable that we can at the same time "keep it," or even believe we need to. As Lutheran ethicist Larry Rasmussen writes, fossil fuels have fostered the illusion that "we can wholly know and control the ecosphere, that its own rhythms and requirements can be bypassed or bent to our design." Our use of such power leads us to believe that we can meet our needs without any sustained commitment to meeting earth's needs at all. But now the "uninvited blow to this illusion," Rasmussen rightly warns, is the result that "every major life system [is] in decline and the rude appearance of that wildest of wild cards, accelerated and extreme climate change. What that means for all life systems reaching for a future we only perceive through a smoky glass" (Earth-honoring Faith, p. 54).

"Till and keep": how do we fulfill both mandates in the face of such overwhelming addiction to fossil fuels? Bible scholar Ellen Davis would have us translate the words "till and keep" as "serve and preserve." Stewards of the earth with the mind of the Christ, who "emptied himself, taking the form of a slave" (Philippians 2:6-7), and through whom "God was pleased to reconcile all things to himself" (Colossians 1:20) would do well to follow her advice, repent of our fossil-fuel fed illusions, and witness by our example that humankind's "tilling" can truly serve God's earth; preserving her fertility would then follow in due course as a work of love.
